ARMISTICE DAY

By Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman

A good part of the civilized world observed a two-minute silence on Armistice Day in memory of the war dead. During that period we hope that people heard the cries and groans of the millions who died and were wounded in the Great War, the weeping and mourning of their relatives and friends, and having heard, realized that of all the foul vices that afflict humanity war is the foulest, and of all the isms that threaten society, militarism is the most dangerous.

A genuine observance of Armistice Day would be a resolution af all nations to outlaw ALL wars.

ADVENTURES IN FELLOWSHIP

In the United States a committee of Christians, headed by Rev. Dr. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federated Churches of Christ in America, and composed of leaders in all walks of life, among them governors of several states, and United States senators, appealed to the non-Jewish public for funds to help the destitute Jews of Eastern Europe. This appeal, unsolicited by Jewish leaders, is a fine and beautiful expression of fellowship on the part of Christian leaders in America.

It is not yet known how much money was collected in answer to this appeal, nor is it important to know its material results. The significant thing is that Christian leaders have voluntarily offered to work for a specific Jewish cause. When we recall the traditional attitude of Christians towards Jews, when we remember the crucifix-bearing priests who incited the Cossacks to pogroms, we cannot but rejoice over this gesture of goodwill. Though many Christians still bear malice towards Jews, it is pleasant to record how some Christian leaders are striving to bridge the gap between Jew and Christian, and though aware of religious differences are more aware of common humanitarian bonds.

In Canada too, there are those who are striving to heal the wound between Jews and Christians. But recently the rabbi of Holy Blossom Synagogue, Toronto, was invited to occupy the pulpit of a former Methodist Church (now a member of the United Church) at a Sunday evening-service. The minister, in extending this invitation to the rabbi, stated that he wanted to show his people that fellowship between Jew and Christian is possible, and so it is.

Jews are more than anxious to reciprocate in such expressions of goodwill. It was Israel Zangwill who voiced a classic appeal for the relief of the Armenian Christians. But a week ago Arthur Sachs, a New York Jew, contributed 150,000 francs towards the reconstruction of the cathedral at Chartres, France.

And last year in Long Branch, N.J., in a community where there are many wealthy Christians, it was a Jew who advanced the money which prevented a church from being sold at public auction, while in New York City many Jews contributed towards the building of the new cathedral. All these adventures in religious fellowship indicate that a finer relationship between the followers of two old

JEWISH ADJUSTMENTS

When an individual person finds himself suddenly placed in a new situation, his natural task is to make an adjustment of himself with the governing factors of his surroundings. He will attempt to ascertain the peculiar characteristics of the set of conditions with which he finds himself face to face. He will take stock of the capacities and talents which are likely to be called into play to cope with the new situation. And he will make it his business to effect a harmony between himself and the strange environment. He will groove and tongue the two parts, as it were, to remove all points of friction, and bring about a working adjustment.

In modern life we find people constantly called upon to make more and more adjustments in their respective spheres of interest. The reason is that the number of factors entering into play is continuously increasing, and the advent of these creates new situations and new occasions for adjustment. People engaged in commercial pursuits now recognize that each line of endeavour has enough peculiar characteristics to warrant a special study being made by experts, and the formulation of the special principles that govern its operations. Insurance brokers have special courses of study on the subject of insurance. Advertisers can get together enough data to create a science of advertising. Journalism, boot-blacking, patent medicine selling—each occupation has its own literature dealing with the intricacies of its pursuit. People are specializing. They take material that was formerly outside the margin of scientific relevancy and turn it into substance for special sciences. They meet ever more facts and render them amenable to adjustment.

But withal, the circumstance is not lost sight of that all these new spheres of adjustment are comprehended in a larger universe of interest which includes all their characteristic qualities. Each branch of business, each department of science, while it is elaborated into a complete and independent subject of study, nevertheless falls into the general scheme of business or science and must harmonize with the other subjects. Their internal adjustments must not conflict with the general tendency underlying their group character. The separate adjustments can be valid only if they are in tune with a comprehensive group motive.

The Jews in Canada are new to their surroundings, and, in the main, the task is still before them of making adjustments with their environment.

In the comparatively short period of their history here they have already attempted to segregate sets of factors and establish their specific significance. With zeal, characteristic of the new world, the Jews have set out to study the multitudinous social phenomena, and to meet the needs suggested by them, with a variety of institutions. It will not be gainsaid that the Jews, say of Toronto, have more organizations and institutions than the Jews of any community of similar size in Germany or Poland. It is a safe hazard that the Jews in Wilna, before the war, did not have Y.M.H.A.'s, Young Business Men's Clubs, Bnai Brith Organizations, Councils of Jewish Women, numerous auxiliaries, political clubs, countless constituent

Where Security Is Lasting

No part of Canada is more firmly established, industrially and agriculturally, or less subject to trade vicissitudes than the busy Ontario counties of Hastings, Northumberland and Peterboro.

JEWS ON PALESTINIAN POLICE FORCE

A new list of police officers that has just been published in Palestine shows again the exclusion of Jews from public service. Out of a total of 107 police officers there are only eleven Jews, only one of whom is in the senior service. Altogether there are thirty-seven high-grade officers, of whom seven are native Arabs and one, the police bandmaster, a Jew. In the lower grades there are ten Jewish police officers of a total of seventy, over fifty of whom are native Arabs. In the ordinary constabulary the proportion of Jews is below the ten per cent. established in the higher grade. Considered in conjunction with the non-Jewish composition of the Transjordan Frontier Force, where there are barely twenty Jews in the body of 800, many see in it an utter disregard of the basic Jewish interests in Palestine. At present the majority of pupils in the Police Training School are Jews, the total being about eighty future officers and men.

Gentiles, even educated, cultivated Gentiles, usually think that Jews are Jews something in the way that potatoes are potatoes. At best they divide Jews into about two classes, one of nice Jews, the other of not nice Jews. But to the Jewish eye there appear many classes and kinds of Jews.

Rabbi Horace J. Wolfe, of Temple Berith Kodesh, Rochester, N.Y., writing recently in the Jewish Ledger, relieved his mind and unburdened his heart on the types of Jews that face him at the holy day season. First, he says, there are the "annual visitors." They are members of some synagogue but will not be seen again until the next holy day time. Then there are the "synagogue shoppers." They are mostly young men and women unaffiliated with any synagogue and they also are annual visitors. They arrive early in groups, make themselves at home and talk out loud during the service about the sermon, the people, etc., and before the service is over they leave "to inflict their presence on some other synagogue."

Rabbi Wolfe catalogues two other groups as "religious parasites." One group affiliates with a synagogue only for the holy days. The rest of the year it attends occasionally, occupying the seats of absent pew-holders or taking advantage of the unassigned pew system. During the holy day season if these attend a family-pew-system synagogue, they must buy tickets, of course. The second group of religious parasites goes to synagogues which have the unassigned pew system and takes the best seats, forcing the real supporters to the rear or gallery. These spend money freely on pleasure, dances, dinners, cards, theatres, and yet the list of subscribers to the United Jewish Campaign and to local institutions of Rochester show that the religious parasites are the most niggardly givers.

Still another kind of Jew was Arthur Meyer, a Parisian, of whom the Chicago Daily Jewish Courier writes. Meyer had been a Jew, editor and proprietor of Le Gaulois, but had turned Catholic in order to marry a Catholic. He gained entrance into exclusive French society and even became a leader in the anti-Semitic movement. When he died he was given a Catholic burial in a Christian graveyard, but later, when his will was opened, it was found that he had wanted to be buried in a Jewish cemetery. The Jewish Courier places Meyer under a new classification. He was one of those to whom Jewish tradition means nothing while they live, one of those whose adherence to Judaism centres in the cemetery—he was a "graveyard Jew."

When Loring Pickering, in behalf of the North American Newspaper Alliance, telegraphed to Upton Sinclair in Pasadena, Cal., requesting the pleasure of his company at a reception in New York, to Her Majesty the Queen of Roumania, Mr. Sinclair replied: "Assure Her Majesty that we shall be with her in spirit and tell our Pasadena audience what we think of her government, the most infamous and blood-soaked in Europe."

Anent this the Nation says in part:

"We suspect that if Marie came to America hoping to raise a loan for her country the hope has gone aglimmering. Society ladies may still pay good money for the privilege of meeting or entertaining royalty, but even the newspaper cartoonists have begun to laugh at Marie's passion for publicity, and financiers are unlikely to be moved by the tactics of a Valentino. Yet it is just as well for rude persons like Mr. Sinclair to inject a serious note into the round of frivolity. Whatever Queen Marie may be personally, her kingdom is one of the plague-spots on the map of Europe. Nowhere in Europe to-day is the lot of the Jews more terrible. They are excluded from the universities and subject to constant attacks in the streets; a Roumanian officer has confessed that under the direction of his commander, he murdered numbers of Jews who were seeking to cross the River Dniester and leave the country, and despite his own confession, a Roumanian court acquitted him!

"Of Marie's personal connections with the crimes committed in her country we know nothing. But it would be well if the public which listens to her over the radio and gapes at her glorious strings of pearls should realize what misery lies behind their beauty and upon what bloody suffering is built the throne of her country." f.f.c.

The Cream of Jewish Humor

By ANZIA YEZIERSKA

When Mr. Richman came from Russia about fifteen years ago, a countryman took him to see a vaudeville show. The "Hebrew comedian," with his false hooked nose, sidelocks and whiskers, walked out upon the stage and began to make the people laugh with his gross exaggerations and caricatures of the Jew.

Right then and there, Mr. Richman vowed that as soon as he learned the English language, he'd write Jewish funny stories that were really Jewish, stories that were the true expression of the Jewish people—not merely about the Jews. For this purpose he has devoted himself to the study of ancient and modern Hebrew literature, collected thousands of Jewish anecdotes of all kinds and all ages, separated the real from the spurious, and has produced a work unique in English literature—a work containing the most humorous anecdotes the Jewish genius has created in three thousand years.

Four years ago, when Mr. Richman's stories began to appear in the New York "Sunday World," and then became a regular feature in the "Evening World," they attracted nation-wide attention. They were discussed and quoted all over the country. And now we have the cream of them in book form.

"Laughs from Jewish Lore" is a dazzling array of absorbingly interesting and hilariously funny stories, distinctly different from anything written by Milt Gross or Montague Glass. Those authors depend on the artificial medium of dialect for their effects. Mr. Richman's stories are based on some humorous aspect of Jewish character, and it is this humorous aspect of character that gives his slightest story a lasting, universal quality.

Thus there is the story of the blind beggar and his seeing partner, who together bought a basket of cherries and agreed, as gentlemen, to eat only one cherry at a time. Suddenly the blind man rose in fury and slapped his crony with all his might in the face, calling him a cheat. When the other demanded the reason for such treatment, the reply was: "If I am taking two cherries at a time and you don't protest, then I am sure you must be taking three or four at a time, and you are nothing but a damned scoundrel."

This is the first book of its kind in the English language. It is not merely the humor of one man or a group of men, but the folk-lore of the whole Hebrew race as expressed in various countries throughout the ages. Between the lines of these funny stories is the history of the Jews in their struggle to adjust themselves among the nations of the world.

Mr. Richman, who is a well-known Hebrew scholar and an authority on Hebrew folk-lore, must now be recognized as a master anecdotist. With his "Laughs from Jewish Lore," he has created a foremost place for himself among the Jewish humorists of America. In his introduction he says:

"The keen sense of humour for which the Jew is distinguished is one of the great psychological enigmas. Oppressed for two thousand years, one would expect the Jew to be a melancholy person, detesting mockery and abhorring levity; yet nobody has contributed so much to the gaiety of nations as the Jew. . . . The Jew has the happy faculty of being able to perceive the ludicrous in the most tragic situations. And he can laugh at almost anything.

I do not agree with Mr. Richman that "we, the saddest of all nations, are also the most humorous." But, in spite of our sadness, we have had from time to time our humorists who've been able to make us laugh in the face of all our troubles. At best, we Jews can never laugh with our bodies as the Irish do. We only laugh in our heads. The typical Jewish joke is sardonic. In our gayest smile lurks a tear.

"When Heinrich Heine was on his deathbed," Mr. Richman relates in his book, "he dictated a will in which he bequeathed everything to his wife, Mathilda, stipulating, however, that she remarry after his death. And when askedf or the reason, the great wit said: 'When Mathilda remarries there will be at least one man who will regret my death.'"

Then there is the story of the dying atheist: "The expiring freethinker sent an urgent call for the rabbi, before whom he wanted to say 'confession.' Asked by his astonished comrades why he had suddenly turned his back on his principles, he declared that by this act he wanted to disprove the Talmudic saying that 'the wicked do not repent even at the threshold of Gehenna.'"

To my mind the best story of Jewish life in America among the three hundred "Laughs from Jewish Lore," is the following:

Years ago, before the great migration of Russian Jews to America, a Jewish merchant settled in a small Southern town, where he opened a dry-goods store.

He was the first Jew ever seen in that community, and the Christian children, who had heard such horrible tales about the Jews, dedicated themselves to the task of making the life of the solitary Israelite a burden to him. Wherever he went, they shouted after him, "Jew! Jew!"

One day the persecuted man inserted in the local paper the following advertisement: "Boys and girls, attention! To-morrow at four p.m., I shall be standing in front of the post office with a large bag of nickels. Any one who will come up to me and call me a Jew will get a nickel. Line forms on the right side. Max Rosenberg."

The following day, at exactly four o'clock, there was in front of the post-office building a long line of boys and girls. Each in turn came up to the despised man, called him Jew, received the promised nickel, and was told to come to-morrow again.

The next day, when the happy youngsters approached the Hebraic Santa Claus and uttered the magic work, they received three cents only.

This reduction was rather disappointing to the young gold-diggers. Yet three cents was not an amount to be sniffed at, and therefore, when the benefactor invited them to reassemble the following day, they accepted the invitation. To their utter dismay, however, all they got for their services was the contemptible sum of one penny.

"We are not going to call you Jew for one penny," protested the little Philistines.

"All right, you don't have to," replied the exploiter nonchalantly.

And from that day on, nobody called him Jew.

If you don't agree with my choice of the best story, read the book yourself, and see if you can find anything that reveals more subtly the sardonic subtlety of the Jew.—Jewish Criterion.

Fires in the Fall

Sing a song of seasons!
Something bright in all!
Flowers in the summer,
Fires in the fall!

—R. L. STEVENSON
(A Child's Garden of Verses)

NO WRITER ever wrote more beautiful and tender verse for children than did R. L. Stevenson. He loved to write of that precious hour just before betime—the hour when armies march, when fairies dance, when the fire is full of a number of things that make little children as happy as kings!

You know how your children love the fire, not only for its comfort, but for its brightness, too. And what gives more joy to the heart of a mother than the fireglow on the happy child face.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW,

Following the visit to our city of the Queen of Roumania and the address presented to her by a delegation of the Adath Israel Anshei Roumania congregation, an article was published in your valuable paper attacking severely our congregation in most unequivocal terms. The article caused great commotion and resentment among the members of the congregation and the Roumanian Jewish residents of this city in general. The following is a resolution unanimously adopted by our congregation at our last meeting held on Sunday, November 7:

"Whereas a ferocious attack was made upon our congregation and our revered rabbi in an article published in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, on November 5, 1926, entitled 'Poor Shtatlonim,' and signed 'A.B.B.', for the address presented to Her Majesty, Marie, Queen of Roumania, in connection with her recent visit to this city;

"And whereas, obviously, the writer of the article is not well-versed with the Roumanian Jewish situation;

"And whereas the said attack is most unmerited and the language used is most atrocious and unjustifiable;

"Be it, therefore, resolved that we, members of the Adath Israel Anshei Roumania Congregation, in general meeting assembled, hereby express our keen resentment at the improper tone and language used in such article, and particularly at the ferocious attack made upon the highly-respected and well-beloved rabbi of our congregation;

"And be it further resolved that this congregation in reviewing the matter most carefully, hereby re-assert and confirm their attitude and course adopted with regard to the visit paid to our city by Her Majesty, Queen Marie of Roumania, as most proper and most calculated to benefit our Roumanian brethren across the sea;

"And the officers of this congregation are hereby instructed to publish this resolution as well as their reply to the objectionable article in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW and in such other papers as they deem fit."

Now, the matter is of keen interest to the Roumanian Jewish community and to the whole of the Jewish Community of this city, and I am confident that you will allow us sufficient space for the above resolution and the following remarks we have to make in our self-defence.

The writer of the article is misinformed when he says that 'Roumania has treated her Jewish population more atrociously than even Russia of the czars.' Who is more qualified to speak of the treatment than we, Roumanian Jews, to whom it is a matter of personal experience? Yet, while we hold no special brief for the Roumanian Government in her treatment of the Roumanian Jewish population, in all justice we must assert that the situations are not alike.

Speaking of the Ukrainian delegation, the writer remarks: "They asked her to exercise whatever influence she may have to change the condition of the Ukrainians." Obviously the writer of the article did not read the address presented to the Queen by our delegation. Had he done so, he could see for himself that this was precisely the attitude adopted by our delegation, for the address taken as a whole is substantially a request that, on her return to Roumania, she use her best influence and endeavour to raise her country to a higher level of religious and racial tolerance and civil equality before the law so that all citizens of Roumania might enjoy peace and liberty under the Roumanian flag.

If the writer of the article is of the opinion that we deserve his condemnation and ferocious attack because we avoided brutal language and uncivilized terms in our address to the Queen, we must disagree most respectfully. On the contrary, we pride ourselves on using due tact in handling the situation and taking every precaution not to harm our brothers across the sea if we could not help them.

We cannot understand the writer's indignant reference to the desecration of the "holy tongue." The writer mentions the fact that the delegates were Zionists. We hope that he will realize that in using the Hebrew language for the original address, we only asserted our spirit of national independence, and our best Zionist tradition of looking upon Hebrew as our national tongue. We must most decidedly reject the writer's obsolete attempt to relegate Hebrew to the realm of "holy tongues" fit for the expression of holy writings only, and not for matters of daily interest and concern to our people. We, therefore, must term the disrespectful language towards our most honoured and beloved rabbi as mere pettiness and boyish recklessness.

May we remind you of a similar situation that had arisen a few years ago in connection with the visit of Paderewski, Poland's premier and well-known pianist. The situation was similar but not alike, and the following points distinguish it from the present situation that was created in connection with the visit of Queen Marie of Roumania.

1. Paderewski was the premier of Poland at the time of the atrocities committed against our Polish brothers and, as such, was directly responsible for the same. His hands were literally bathed in the innocent blood of our brothers, while Queen Marie is not in a position of a government executive, and is only a constitutional ruler whose power is more or less illusory and limited by parliament.

2. Paderewski never made any secret of his anti-Semitism and showed every sign of hostility towards us, whereas the Queen of Roumania never showed any hostility either by word or deed towards the Jewish people, and has never been known to the Roumanian Jews as an anti-Semite, but, on the contrary, on the occasion of her recent visit made a warm profession of friendship on behalf of herself and her royal spouse. It was no duty of ours to take such statement otherwise than at its face value, but, on the contrary, it was our duty to give her credit for being sincere in her profession of friendship.

3. Paderewski came here in his professional capacity for the purpose of gain. It was but human for us Jewish people to make an appeal to our brothers and to our fellow-citizens and friendly neighbours not to patronize the enterprise, and not to carry our well-earned dollars and cents a gift to the man was was immediately responsible for the brutal and inhuman treatment of our Polish brothers, whereas the Queen of Roumania came here on a friendly visit, asking no favours, not being even under an obligation to receive our delegation.

We beg to assure you of our highest regard for your valuable paper.

Yours truly,
Adath Israel Anshei Roumania Congregation,
I. LIEBERMAN,
President.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

Will you be kind enough to allow me some space in the next issue of your valuable paper?

In the editorial of November 5, under the caption, "Poor Shtatlonim" the writer makes a series of attacks on the delegation of the Roumanian Hebrew congregation, Adath Israel, who addressed Queen Marie of Roumania on her recent visit to Toronto. I, being one of the delegates, feel that I have good reasons for making the following remarks, concerning the editorial.

The writer stated that the newspapers led one to believe that the delegation was composed of Roumanians, but that he was strangely shocked when he realized from their photographs that they were Jews, and still more surprised by—Zionists.

It seems to me that any mention of Zionism at all was altogether unnecessary, and in extremely poor taste. Then the writer goes on to say that Jews of Roumanian origin owe allegiance to Canada. Well, I am taking the liberty to speak up for the Roumanian Jews in Toronto as well as on my own behalf, that we are just as loyal to Canada as the writer himself. In your issue of the same date, under the caption of "Every Friday," you demand, "Who asked them to form a delegation?" I assure the writer of "Every Friday" that we are sensible of our duty to the community, but where it is a matter appertaining to the affairs of the Roumanian Jews, we are equal to the task and are always ready and willing to tackle the problem without waiting for a special invitation of any one else.

As to classing us with the very minor group, I would say that if only a proportion of our members cancelled their subscriptions to the CANADIAN JEWISH clubs of a charity federation, shochtim unions, and the various other organizations which clutter up our public buildings in this city. Each of these organizations here attempts to deal with separate sets of conditions, and to bring about the adjustment of their relevant factors.

There is, however, a fundamental weakness in these adjustment efforts: The adjustments are sectional and are not in keeping with any broader, basic scheme. Each institution and organization copes with a special sphere of facts. Taken together, they do not constitute a harmonious whole referable to some larger, comprehensive principle.

In dealing with the various problems before us we think only of the limited sets of facts which are applicable to the respective problems. We do not set before us this larger question: Are these separate adjustments parts of a larger scheme of adjustment of our essential nature to our environment?

Failure to take into account the broader problem of adjustment results in the chaotic condition which marks our communal activities. Our various insitutions and organizations not only do not function as parts of a harmonious whole, but often they conflict with one another.

We need only cite a few instances to make this point clear.

The four major institutions in this community are undoubtedly the Zionist Organization, the Federation of Charities, the Synagogue and the Talmud Torahs. Each concerns itself with an important phase of communal need. Each presumably deals fully with the set of conditions which comes within its zone of interest. Each, however, acts separately without reference to the other. If we were to assume that our community is a harmonious entity, we would recognize that in all these phases of adjustment there is an underlying general principle which should govern their respective activities. In our educational endeavour we should not forget that the Jewish community as a group is seeking to make a complete adjustment with environment, in all its phases. To seek to adjust the educational factors without reference to the Zionist factors, or to the synagogal factors, is to ignore the unity of our group.

Yet in our separate adjustments we overlook the bearing of each on the attitude of the whole. Our multitudinous institutions ply their activities without concerning themselves with the fate of the others. Our charity link is independent of and indifferent to an educational or religious needs Our Zionism divorces itself from domestic or local problems. We are weltering in a morass of hopeless pluralism. Our adjustments—and this applies to most Jewish communities on the continent—are sectional. We have as yet not achieved the status of a self-conscious group making a harmonized adjustment with a plastic environment.

"HOI ALLOI VICE NORDAU"

In a recent issue of this Journal we read the following communal news item:

"Nordau Club, formerly of Young Judaea, have changed their name to the Hoi Alloi Club and are meeting at the Y.M.C.A. Applicants phone ....."

We confess that we never heard of the personage who superseded Nordau in the affection sof the members of the club. And no doubt the organization had reasons satisfactory to itself for shifting from the atmosphere of Young Judea to that ot the Y.M.C.A.

Perhaps the Hebrew ejaculation "Hoi U'Avoil" (meaning "Alas! and Alack!") would be an even more suitable title for the club than "Hoi Alloi," whatever that means.

WHY FEDERATION NEEDS ADDITIONAL MEMBERS

The Public Health Nurse telephoned the Federation that there was a ten-year-old boy in the Sick Children's Hospital suffering from diabetes. He was ready to be released provided the family would purchase a scale, especially adapted for diabetic patients, for the proper measurement of food.

Upon investigation the family was found to be quite poor. The mother had been seriously ill for some time. The father, because of his poor eyesight, was unemployed for over a year. The entire family of five, parents and three small children, were living with the father's brother-in-law, who himself was quite poor, earning less than $25 per week, with one child suffering from a tubercular hip.

The Federation, through the Family Welfare Bureau, immediately arranged to purchase the required scale, instructed a married sister in the proper use of the scale, ordered milk and cream for the ten-year-old diabetic boy, took steps to examine and treat the father's eyes, purchased glasses for him and is now trying to find him employment.

Very distressing and hopeless was the outlook to the frail, delicate woman and her seven young children, who at all times had lived comfortably, who had maintained good standards, and whose needs had been amply provided for by a hard-working husband, a real "balbatisch" family. When she unexpectedly lost her husband and was left with seven young children the burden became almost too great.

Debts piled up—the sympathetic grocer could no longer sell on credit—the mortgage upon the small, modest house was overdue—the bailiffs were taking steps to sell the house for unpaid taxes—the older boys had gotten beyond her control—and the mother who had never before handled money in large amounts, found herself helpless. She was becoming anaemic for lack of sufficient food. She was in the midst of so much trouble and confusion that she was on the verge of a nervous breakdown.

Encouragement, advice and a certain amount of material assistance were imperative. Food and coal were sent from the Family Welfare Bureau. The family was placed on a regular weekly allowance. The mortgage and the bailiffs were seen and their claims adjusted. Both consented to wait a short time and both were satisfied to receive monthly payments, and to make the terms of payment much easier. A loan sufficiently large to meet the immediate payments was arranged by the Family Welfare Bureau, and means were found whereby the family could gradually repay this loan. The financial difficulties were thus cleared away. The mother's health is now improving and she is beginning to take a more hopeful view of life. Her children were entered in the Toronto Talmud Torah and a friendly visitor will assist the mother in her control over the children.

religions is possible. Even when prejudice raises its poisonous fangs, earnest Christians and Jews are trying to practice the high ethics of their faiths, and are finding many platforms on which they can stand and work together. Perhaps these adventures in fellowship are the harbingers of a nobler age.

MAKING THE WORLD SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY

Nine years after the signing of the Armistice which ended the war to end wars and to make the world safe for democracy, we learn that in Italy Mussolini's Cabinet has recommended some measures, which if approved, as they very likely will be, will annihilate civil liberties in Italy. The proffered bill contains the following provisions:

1. Any form of opposition to the Fascisti party by either word or deed is illegal and punishable with heavy fines or terms of imprisonment.

PILSUDSKY FORMS NEW CABINET

The upheaval in Poland, which led to the resignation of the Bartol Ministry, was due directly to the stand taken by the Club of Jewish Deputies to vote against the Ministry mainly on account of the attitude of the Minister of Education toward the restriction in the admission of Jews to the Universities. At first the vote of lack of confidence was intended only for the Minister of Education, but when this was disregarded by the President, the vote of lack of confidence in the whole Ministry was passed, which led to Marshal Pilsudsky forming a new Cabinet.

The numerus clausus in Poland was not a law as it is in Hungary, but was practiced nevertheless on the ground of a secret circular issued to all the colleges by the former Minister of Education. When the present Ministry allowed the practice to continue, a wave of resentment was raised by the Jewish population and the deputies decided to express this resentment in a vote of lack of confidence against the Minister of Education. Although an ordinance was issued by the Minister in the last few days entirely abolishing the numerus clausus, the dissatisfaction was not abated thereby, since, as it is pointed out; this will be of no avail for this year, because the enrollment in the universities has already been completed and the numerus clausus had been applied with great severity in all colleges. It is strange that in the list of the members of the new Pilsudsky Cabinet the name of the Minister of Education is not included.

Jewish congregations and individuals have been asked to contribute to a fund which will be utilized to inscribe the name of Chief Rabbi Hertz in the Golden Book of the Jewish National Fund, on the occasion of the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Fund.

Dr. Zebi Chayes, chief rabbi of Vienna, celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary on October 13. Dr. Chayes, who is a native of Galicia, served as professor at the University of Florence and at the Jewish Seminary there under the late Dr. Margulies. He is prominent in Zionist circles and is recognised as a Biblical scholar of distinction.

CAMPAIGN DESIGNED TO OBTAIN LARGER GENERAL SUPPORT OF THE COMMUNITY

1,000 New Members the Goal

The Federation Membership Campaign will open with a dinner to captains and workers in the Primrose Club, Sunday evening, November 21, Harry Rotenberg, President of the Federation, will preside. Rabbi Ferdinand M. Isserman and S. Polakoff of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union will be the principal speakers.

It is the desire of the Federation to obtain greater support from the community. The Membership of Federation, at present less than 1,500, that is less than 4 per cent. of the population, is far below the standard attained in other cities of similar size where the membership ranges from 7 per cent to 11 per cent. of the population. There should be one Federation member from at least every two families.

The campaign teams will be formed into four divisions, namely: Women's Division, Mrs. Harry Mark, Commander; Trades and Professions, J. Perkins, commander; Lodges and Societies, M. S. Till, commander, and Synagogue Teams, E. Pullan, commander.

VICTORIA, B.C.

Remembering, and grateful for, the assistance which members of the Christian communities of Victoria gave them seven decades ago when they founded their church here, the Jewish congregation, Emanu-El, has sent a cheque for $100 to the new Christ Church Cathedral fund. Accompanying the cheque was a note of good wishes for the cathedral scheme.

In connection with this subscription it is worth recalling that English Jews were among the biggest subscribers to the Liverpool Cathedral fund.

Congregation Emanu-El, Victoria, was probably the first Jewish community in Canada to possess its own synagogue, and theirs is the oldest house of worship in Victoria still used for the purposes for which it was originally built. The Jewish community here has always taken a prominent place in local affairs, particularly benevolent movements and other enterprises aimed at the promotion of the city's interests. The first representative for Victoria in the Canadian House of Commons was Henry Nathan, a member of the Jewish community here, who was also the first Jew in the Canadian House. The congregation Emanu-El is without a rabbi. Officers are I. M. Nodek, president; A. Lancaster, treasurer, and E. Fromson, secretary.

Announcement of the congregation's unsolicited gift of $100 to the Christ Church Cathedral fund was made by the Ven. Archdeacon Laycock on Monday evening, at the Memorial Hall, in connection with a lantern lecture on "Cathedrals of England."

BARON M. DE ROTHSCHILD IS RE-ELECTED DEPUTY

Baron Maurice de Rothschild, of Paris, France, was elected Deputy for the Hautes-Alpes Department by the crushing majority of 10,540 votes, against 3,149 for the Socialist Inghels and 3,145 for the Radical Forgeot.

This is the second time that the owner of a great racing stable and the scion of the famous banking family has won at the polls, but after his first election the Chamber refused to validate it on the ground that bribery had been resorted to. For long months the Baron never missed a session of the Chamber of Deputies, and listened tirelessly to the debates without having the right to express an opinion.

A special commission appointed to examine the case issued an enormous document of more than 400 pages recommending validation, and in order to dampen the ire of the Deputies roused by the cost of printing this volume the Baron paid the bill himself.

REVIEW, you would soon appreciate that we are not such a negligible quantity as the article would lead one to believe.

I also enclose herewith a clipping of our address to the Queen, from the Toronto "Daily Star," which I trust you will be kind enough to insert in your valuable paper to enable the Jewish public to judge for themselves.

ADATH ISRAEL'S ADDRESS TO MARIE

(Printed by Request)

The following address was presented to Queen Marie at the parliament buildings by Rabbi Meyer Berger on behalf of the congregation "Adath Israel," men of Rumania:

To Her Majesty, Marie, Queen of Great Rumania:

Blessed be the Creator of heaven and earth; blessed be his majesty, Ferdinand the First, King of Great Rumania; blessed be thou, his royal consort, Queen Marie and all thine offspring and blessed be the kingdom of Rumania and all its subjects.

We, Rumanian-born Jewish people, citizens of Canada and inhabitants of Toronto, are happy at this opportunity of extending our welcome to your majesty on your visit to this city.

We, together with the rest of our people, have taken great delight in your statement published in the American daily papers, that you, together with his majesty the king, harbour feelings of friendship towards the Jewish people and acknowledge their equality with the rest of his majesty's subjects taking shelter under the flag of Rumania.

We are confident that, being a descendant of the great queen of the mighty British Empire, whose memory is cherished by the House of Israel, on your return to your capital from your visit to this continent, you will exert your influence shedding the sweetness of your mind and spirit in all the corners of your kingdom to encourage feelings of humanity towards all who are created in the image of God and amongst them also our brethren, the children of Israel.

We are offering sincere prayer to the King of kings to send His blessings upon your royal house and your kingdom, that they may live in happiness and peace amidst all the other subjects of your kingdom, forever and forever, amen.

(Signed) Congregation "Adath Israel," Men of Rumania,
Per RABBI MEYER BERGER,
I. LIEBERMAN, President,
W. GOODMAN, Secretary.

SPEAKS ON FAMILY WELFARE

Dr. I. M. Rubinow, of Philadelphia, director of the Family Welfare Society of that city, in his address at the Federation luncheon last week, at the Primrose Club, emphasized the importance of constructive work with needy families. There is no such thing as "worthy" poor. Any family in need must be helped. No one, however unworthy, can be allowed to suffer. But the actual giving of money to the needy, said Dr. Rubinow, while necessary, is only incidental to solving the problems which confront their lives. What is known as family welfare work is the keystone of real community service, because only such work, if properly done, provides the diagnostic machinery without which all other activities are well-nigh fruitless.

The health work advice, encouragement and giving to the family the necessary moral and mental control represents the most advanced form of charity work. To do this, training, experience and courage are necessary. There is an absolute necessity in community welfare work for trained, professional workers who can investigate, diagnose correctly and supply the proper remedy for each individual case.

There are two basic principles in present day Jewish social work, according to Dr. Rubinow, one the furnishing of funds—no Jewish community is too poor to look after its people—and second the respect for and the encouragement of the proper professionalization of family welfare work, bas-

Lady Battersea's Memoirs in the Canadian Jewish Review

If you were eighty-three years of age, and retained a perfect memory with the gift of accurate and graceful narrative—if you were carried in the arms of Thackeray, and when you were three years old you had called a famous man, "You old white bear"—if later you attended a British princess on a visit to the south of France, and often entertained her as a guest in your country home in England—if as a child you had spent Succoth in Frankfort, and as a yachtswoman had taken lunch with Kaiser William on the "Hohenzollern"—if you had known almost everyone interesting or eminent who was your contemporary—if your father was a Rothschild and your mother a Montefiore—you ought to be able to write absorbing and fascinating reminiscences, and this is what Lady Battersea has done.

SCIENCE AND THE WASH TUB

A FEW YEARS AGO A GRADUATE IN SCIENCE FROM TORONTO UNIVERSITY CONCEIVED THE IDEA OF GIVING A BETTER LAUNDRY SERVICE TO THE PEOPLE OF TORONTO, AND TO THAT END SPENT SOME THREE YEARS IN CAREFUL STUDY AND VISITING SOME OF THE LARGEST LAUNDRIES IN THE UNITED STATES. THIS PERSON WAS STANLEY ROBERTSON, AND IN KEEPING WITH THE HIGH STANDARD WHICH HE SET OUT TO ACCOMPLISH FITTINGLY CALLED HIS PLANT THE QUALITY LAUNDRY.

WHEN TAKING US THROUGH HIS PLANT RECENTLY, WE LEARNED THAT SOFT WATER WAS USED EXCLUSIVELY. THIS IS SECURED IN ABUNDANT QUANTITIES, NOT BY CHEMICALS, BUT SIMPLY BY ALLOWING ORDINARY WATER TO TRICKLE DOWN THROUGH GREEN SAND CALLED "ZEOLITE," THE SAND ABSORBING THE HARDNESS. MR. ROBERTSON NEXT EXPLAINED A VERY CLEVER DEVICE TO KEEP THE CLOTHES FROM GETTING MIXED. THE OLD SYSTEM OF USING IDENTIFICATION MARKS WHICH DISFIGURED AND CHEAPENED THE APPEARANCE OF CLOTHING IS DONE AWAY WITH AND INSTEAD THE CLOTHES ARE PLACED IN SEPARATE CONTAINERS AND SEALED UP. AS ONE PERSON FITTINGLY EXPRESSED IT, THE SYSTEM WORKS LIKE A YALE LOCK WITH NO CHANCE FOR CLOTHES TO GET LOST. A SPECIAL HYGIENIC FEATURE WHICH WOULD APPEAL TO MOST HOUSEWIVES IS THE FACT THAT ALL TABLE LINEN IS WASHED SEPARATE FROM THE REST OF THE CLOTHING. WE UNDERSTAND THIS IS A FEATURE WHICH FEW LAUNDRIES ATTEMPT. BUT WHEN IT CAME TO SEEING THE CLOTHES WASHED WE CAN NOW UNDERSTAND WHERE SCIENCE PLAYS A VERY IMPORTANT PART. MR. ROBERTSON FEELS HE IS ENABLED BY HIS SPECIAL WASHING PROGRAMME TO MAKE THE CLOTHES SWEET AND CLEAN WITHOUT THAT OBJECTIONABLE LAUNDRY ODOUR, AND WITHOUT ANY APPRECIABLE WEAR ON THE GARMENTS.

WITH TRUCKS GOING ANYWHERE IN THE CITY ANY DAY, AT ALL TIMES, AND HAVING SEEN WHAT SCIENCE CAN DO IN PRODUCING CLEAN CLOTHES AND LINENS, WE PREDICT A VERY BRIGHT FUTURE FOR THE QUALITY LAUNDRY.

The Jewish ex-member of the Persian Parliament, Mr. Hayeem, who was one of the leading Jews of Teheran, was executed on the charge of having conspired against the present Shah. Four other Jews who were arrested with him are still under suspense and it is likely that they also will be given the death sentence.

EDMONTON

Mrs. Maryase Bloom, wife of J. W. Bloom died at Edmonton, Alta., in her sixty-first year, Sunday, October 31, after an illness of six months. Mrs. Bloom came to Montreal forty years ago and lived there up to 1912. She is survived by her husband; three sons, Ed., Martin and Marcus; and five daughters, Mrs. Sarah Mayer, New York, Mrs. H. A. Bercovich, of Regina, Sask.; Mrs. M. O. Allen, Mrs. M. Borchinsky and Mrs. H. Levine, of Edmonton.

WINDSOR

In the Prince Edward Hotel, Miss Florence Meretsky, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Meretsky, Ouellette Avenue, became the bride of Lawrence Kert, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. I. Kert, of Montreal.

The ceremony took place in the ballroom of the hotel, which was decorated with palms and tall vases of chrysanthemums. It was performed by Rabbi A. Herschman, of Temple Shaarey Zadek, Detroit, assisted by Rabbi A. Kamenkovitz, Windsor, who intoned a part of the Hebrew ritual.

To Mendelssohn's wedding march the bridal party entered the ballroom at 6.30 p.m. The bride, who was given away by her father and mother, was in a gown of white duchess satin with a bertha of rose point lace. Her train was lined with pale pink georgette, and her veil, which was in the Russian cap effect, was also trimmed with rose point. She carried a bouquet of orchids and lillies-of-the-valley.

Her bridesmaids were Miss Esther Kert, of Montreal, sister of the groom, wearing a peach and gold period gown, with a shoulder corsage of roses and lillies-of-the-valley; Miss Estelle Myers, in a period style dress of orchid moire, with a shoulder corsage of roses and lillies-of-the-valley; and Miss Edith Gallow, of Detroit, who wore rose shot taffeta in period style, also with a shoulder corsage of roses and lillies-of-the-valley. All carried feather fans in contrasting colours, gifts of the bride. The best man was Ernest Kert, of Montreal, brother of the groom; groomsmen were Milton Meretsky and Kem Meretsky.

As the bridal party reached the canopy under which the ceremony took place, bridesmaids and groomsmen lined up to form an aisle through which the bride and her parents marched to meet the groom and his parents.

Miss Meretsky was preceded by Sylvia Burnstein, in a frock of flesh pink georgette, and who strewed rose petals. The train bearers were Cecil Burnstein and Leona Gallow. They wore dainty dresses of rose georgette.

At the beginning of the ceremony, Miss Rhea Harris sang "Until," accompanied by Miss Resia Lechtziar.

The bride's mother wore a frock of gold lace and sequins, with a shoulder corsage of roses, lillies-of-the-valley and chrysanthemums. The groom's mother wore a French dress of black jet, with a shoulder corsage of roses, lillies-of-the-valley and chrysanthemums. The bride and groom received on the mezzanine floor, outside the ballroom. Two hundred and fifty guests sat down to a five-course dinner.

The bride's table was centered with four cathedral tapers, in the middle of which was the bride's cake, and each of the smaller tables bore centrepieces of flowers, roses, 'mums and ferns.

Mr. and Mrs. Kert left at midnight for Montreal, New York, Atlantic City and Bermuda, and will live in Toronto. The bride's going away dress was of Burgundy wool, and she wore a gray lamb coat with gray fox trimmings, small Burgundy and gray hat to match.

The bridegroom is a member of the law firm of Singer and Kert. He saw service in the war as a member of the aviation corps, and was for eighteen months a prisoner of war in a German prison camp.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan, 1924.

LIBRARY OF OSCAR STRAUS AT HEBREW UNIVERSITY

The Jewish National and Hebrew University Library in Jerusalem has now received the complete library of the late Oscar Straus, of New York which was bequeathed to the Library. During his life time Oscar Straus had from time to time donated several hundred volumes to the Library, and the books which the Library has now acquired number some thousand volumes, pertaining to international law, to general history, to political history of America, and history of the American Jews.

Among the books received are included the following items:

A Series on the Foreign Relations of the United States, American History and the Report of the American Historical Association; a Series of Makers of History and the Publication of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace; many Encyclopaedias, and also a volume of clippings and copies from different sources concerning the diplomatic correspondence of the United States with Turkey with reference to the Jews dating from 1840-1901.

Confidence--the Keynote of Success

The knowledge that one is properly dressed creates that confidence which characterizes a successful man.

Collars that feel like a caress. The Van-Dusen and semi-soft made to rival the best starched collar.

Shirts that fit correctly. No bulging at neck or bosom. Cuffs turned evenly, and when necessary taken off and reversed.

Socks and Woollens with that soft, velvety feeling so much desired and only possible when a soap like "Ivory" is used.

Repairs—Every article the man wears kept in first-class condition, not merely "mending free."

"Open, Sesame"

ALI BABA murmured the magic words, the cavern door swung open and costly treasures lay at his feet.

You, too, have an "open, sesame" to the treasures of the world. It is advertising.

Read the advertising and you open the door to countless comforts and conveniences you otherwise would miss. For advertising will spread before you the product of fields, looms and factories the world over—things that make life easier, happier, more interesting and more fruitful for you and your family.

There is no questioning the real benefits that come from regular and systematic reading of the advertising columns. No other one thing will give you such economy and keen satisfaction in buying.

Advertising is far too important to be overlooked.

Read JEWISH REVIEW advertisements and profit from the dividends you secure by patronizing the concerns who will give you the courtesy and value which you and your dollars deserve.
